INTRODUCTION

We, the members of the Forty-Second Statewide Investigating Grand Jury, having received and reviewed evidence pertaining to violations of the Pennsylvania Crimes Code and the Pennsylvania Tax Reform Code occurring in and around Allegheny, Chester, Dauphin, Delaware, Lancaster and Philadelphia counties pursuant to Notice of Submission of Investigation Number 21 do hereby make the following findings of fact and recommendation of charges:

FINDINGS OF FACT

The Grand Jury conducted an extensive investigation into a sophisticated scheme to defraud the Pennsylvania tax credit program. The program is designed to attract and assist companies doing business in Pennsylvania by providing them a credit on taxes owed – a credit that can then be sold to other companies to generate working capital. The perpetrators of the scheme here – Christopher Wing Tat Chiu (a/k/a Chris Chiu or Christopher Wing-Tat Chiu), and his wife, Ivy Hiu-Ying Li (a/k/a Ivy Li and/or Hiu Yin Li) created 20 sham companies that never did any business, in Pennsylvania or elsewhere. Yet Chiu and Li obtained over $10 million in transferable tax credits and sold over $6 million worth of those credits before the scam was discovered. That money was ultimately deposited into bank accounts in Hong Kong, where Chiu and Li fled themselves. None of the money was ever used to bolster Pennsylvania's economy.

The fraud involved two of Pennsylvania's several tax credits – the Research and Development (R&D) tax credit, and the Keystone Innovation Zone (KIZ) tax credit. Between 2012 and 2017, 62 fraudulent R&D tax credit applications were submitted to the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue ("DOR") on behalf of the 20 fake companies, and $8,127,621 in transferable credits were awarded. During that same period, the companies also submitted 27 fraudulent KIZ tax credit applications to the Pennsylvania Department of Community and Economic Development ("DCED") and were awarded $2,517,814 in transferable KIZ tax credits. Each of the tax credit applications submitted to DOR and DCED, from 2012 to 2017, contained materially false information on which the agencies relied when they awarded the tax credits. None of the twenty sham companies created by Chiu and Li legitimately met the requirements for receiving tax credits; in fact none of the companies even had any expenditures in Pennsylvania (or anywhere else) during the relevant period. The only revenue that could be traced to the companies during this time consisted of the proceeds from the sale of the tax credits.

Those proceeds resulted from at least 50 tax credit transfer applications that also contained materially false information, and that were based on credits the companies did not deserve. In total, the Chiu/Li companies were able to sell <sup>6,365,777 ES</sup> ~~$6,365,777~~ in credits — money that otherwise would have been paid in state taxes for the benefit of all the residents of this Commonwealth.

Overview of Pennsylvania Tax Credit Programs

The Grand Jury reviewed 637 exhibits comprising thousands of pages of documents. Multiple witnesses appeared, including Sarah Spishock ("Spishock"), the economic development consultant responsible for overseeing various tax credit programs at the DCED, and Timothy Baker ("Baker"), former chief of the criminal division of the DOR. They testified that tax credit programs are designed to incentivize taxpayers (companies or individuals) to engage in certain industries, practices or activities by reducing the taxpayer's tax liability for engaging in that particular qualifying work. The Commonwealth does not pay the taxpayer in cash for engaging in a particular industry, but instead rewards the taxpayer by giving it a credit against its state tax liability. Although they cost millions of dollars in tax revenue, tax credit programs are viewed as beneficial because they draw businesses and enterprises into the community, which in the long term should increase tax revenues and benefit the economy. Similar programs are operated by the federal government and other states.

The Grand Jury learned that certain tax credit programs provide an additional benefit. The credits are actually transferrable, or sellable, by the awardee to third parties in exchange for money. These types of credits are commodities which can be sold at a modestly discounted price, thereby providing the original companies with an almost immediate infusion of cash to put back into their businesses. Theoretically, this is especially beneficial for newer companies trying to get off the ground.

The Grand Jury learned that in order to qualify for the R&D tax credit, taxpayers must, along with other requirements, demonstrate research expenses incurred for qualified research and development conducted within Pennsylvania. DOR staff who review the applications have relied almost exclusively, if not exclusively, on the information set forth by the applicant as being true and correct. The KIZ program is not limited to particular types of expenditures, but instead has a geographic focus. There are 29 designated KIZ regions, created around academic and educational institutions, in part to encourage graduates of local colleges and universities to remain in the area. As with R&D credits, the evidence provided to the Grand Jury established that DCED staff members who review the applications have relied heavily on the information set forth by the applicant as being true and correct.

The manner in which these programs have been administered caused the Grand Jury some concern; these concerns are addressed in a Report that will be publicly issued. This presentment will focus on the criminal actions of Chris Chiu and Ivy Li.

The Scam is Discovered

In late 2017, an employee from the DOR received a request for information from an individual identifying himself as "Wayne Clarkson" related to a company called "Global Technology Enterprise Corporation" ("Global"). The individual requested information necessary for an application for either R&D or KIZ tax credits. In attempting to retrieve the information, the DOR staffer noticed anomalies indicating that the company might not be legitimate. This included the fact that in 2013, another company, Accu Measurement and Testing, Inc., ("AMT"), made a payment to the DOR on behalf of Global. The suspicious behavior was brought to the attention of the DOR's Deputy Secretary of Policy who, in turn, asked for a complete review of all of the applicants who had been awarded R&D tax credits and were looking to sell them. As a result of the investigation, the DOR was able to isolate problematic applications from a total of 21 companies. The Office of General Counsel then referred the matter to the Pennsylvania Office of the Attorney General, and DOR assisted in the criminal investigation. Through this investigation, one of the initial 21 companies was actually determined to be legitimate. Therefore, this investigation focused on the other 20 companies.

The Masterminds Behind the Fraud

The investigation was placed before this Grand Jury. Evidence revealed that Chiu and Li came from Hong Kong to the United States in the late 1990s and studied at Michigan State University. Chiu received a Doctorate of Philosophy in the field of "Measurement and Quantitative Methods" in the fall of 1999. Li obtained a Master's Degree in the field of "Educational Technology and Instructional Design" in the summer of 2000. Chiu and Li married in 2000 and remained in the United States. They became naturalized citizens in 2007.

Following their graduation, the couple moved to Pennsylvania and settled in Bucks County. There the couple started two companies. They created AMT in January 2004 and later EdigitalDataCenter, Inc., ("Edigital"). Both companies applied for, and were awarded, R&D and KIZ tax credits. Before the year 2012, it is possible that the credits had some legitimate basis. At some point, however, Chiu and Li realized that, through the use of elaborate fraud, the credits themselves could become their business. They began creating a series of shell companies set up solely for the purpose of claiming tax credits. Between 2012 and 2017, when authorities began suspecting a problem, there is absolutely no evidence of legitimate revenue or expenditures for any of the companies.

While the Pennsylvania companies continued to exist on paper – and through tax credits – Chiu went back to Hong Kong in December 2012 and remained there until June 2016, when he made a brief visit to the United States. By August 2016 he was back in Hong Kong, and has not stepped foot here since. Li also went back to Hong Kong in December 2012, but for a brief visit to the U.S. in October 2015. Since then, she too has never returned.

After AMT and Edigital, the couple went on to create 18 additional sham entities in order to obtain more sellable tax credits. Chiu and Li created numerous false identities to be the “faces” of the sham companies in order to secure more tax credits. They then engaged tax credit brokerage firms to sell their credits. Chiu and Li regularly demanded quick payments upon the completion of the sales, and actively tried to find more tax credit programs in Pennsylvania to defraud. And when Pennsylvania officials finally began to question the scheme, the perpetrators began looking into tax credit programs in the state of New Jersey.

Investigators visited the companies' supposed locations only to discover that not one of the companies maintained a physical presence at its listed address. In some instances, the businesses did not even rent a mailbox at the identified location. In at least two cases, no such address even existed. Most were merely "virtual offices" hosted by online companies such as Regus.

Not only could no physical locations be confirmed; neither could the ostensible corporate officers associated with the companies be found – except for the first two, AMT and Edigital, which Li and Chiu apparently formed before they figured out their tax credit scam, and which thus carried their own names as officers. In every other case, it was impossible to confirm that any of the people listed on the applications for R&D and KIZ tax credits, or on the applications to sell the credits (other than Chiu and Li) actually existed. Indeed, Chiu and Li went so far as to concoct social security numbers, none of which were real, for the fake people listed on the paperwork. The telephone numbers associated with the companies were also fictitious. There were no UCC filings for any of the 20 companies, and no patents applied for, or held by, Li, Chiu or any of the 20 companies.

Bank Accounts, Bank Accounts and More Bank Accounts

This investigation uncovered twenty different U.S. bank accounts that were linked to Chiu and Li, either directly – through signature cards, account addresses, company names, notes maintained by the bank – or indirectly through transactions made between accounts.

Seven accounts were in the name of Chiu or Li. Five accounts were solely in the name of AMT, their first company. There were two accounts for AMT doing business as Edigital, and one account for Abella, Inc. Additionally, three accounts were in the name of Airolution, one account was for Global and one account was for Edigital. Proceeds from the tax credits sold for Swapformore, Optionbotic, WHLRC, Scientific Software, Dataworks Analytics, Orange Innovation, Online Store Builder, AMQ, American Computing, Algorithm Experts, AHFT, AFTR, Bgfp, Optionality Digital, Cherry Pick were wired directly to bank accounts in Hong Kong.

Analysis of bank records demonstrated that money was frequently moved between the accounts for no apparent legitimate reason. Timothy Baker, the former DOR employee, testified that he had investigated many money laundering cases over the course of his career and, based upon his knowledge and experience, he determined that all of this money was moved in and out simply to make the accounts and businesses appear legitimate. Most importantly, Baker explained to the Grand Jury that the only revenue from any source in any of the accounts consisted almost entirely of the numerous payments received for the transfer of R&D or KIZ-related tax credits to third parties.

Furthermore, a review of the bank records revealed that there were no personnel expenses, no equipment expenses, and no computer costs for any of the 20 companies within the United States. There were simply no expenses consistent with the operation of a legitimate business in Pennsylvania or anywhere. Ultimately, the investigation was able to trace almost $5 million transferred from American accounts to seven different accounts in Hong Kong -- where they are beyond our reach.

Credit Cards

The Grand Jury was informed that it is not uncommon for small businesses to initially rely heavily upon credit cards. Throughout the course of this investigation, therefore, care was taken to search for credit cards that could be related to Chiu, Li, or the 20 companies. Fifteen traceable credit cards were identified. Of these fifteen credit cards, only seven incurred more than nominal debits. Of those seven credit cards, almost all of the debits were for personal expenses rather than business expenses. The Grand Jury learned that an American Express credit card linked to Li and a Citibank credit card linked to Chiu were the only two credit cards that were used on a regular basis. Between 2007 and 2018, $220,380 was charged to Li's American Express card, primarily for personal expenses. Indeed, between March 2017 and April 2018 alone, Li purchased $145,000 worth of Hermes merchandise. Chiu's Citibank credit card was utilized to make payments to Regus and other virtual business websites. The card was also used to purchase $8,000 worth of computer products from Apple. Overall, most of the Citibank card charges were for personal expenses.

Mail and e-mail

The credit card statements established that, in addition to multiple Regus "mailbox" rental agreements, Chiu routinely paid for a ServCorp "mailbox" rental agreement in Hong Kong, which was then employed to rent an address for Global in Philadelphia. Some of the companies had their mail forwarded to addresses associated with "Earthlasiemail.com," which itself is simply a forwarding service. Li and Chiu also obtained an account with 1&1 Internet Inc. for e-mail addresses, domain sites and web addresses. And 1&1's records showed that Li and Chiu's account there hosted 27 different domain names and 105 e-mail addresses, linking them to every one of the 20 sham companies in question.

These e-mail addresses were used to communicate with the virtual office locations, the tax credit brokers, staff at the DCED and DOR, and accountants engaged to prepare some of the tax returns material to this investigation. Thousands of pages of e-mail communications from the Chiu/Li companies were obtained and entered into evidence in this case. The chart below shows e-mail addresses associated with each of the 20 companies.

The investigation determined that 41 University Drive, Suite 400 in Newtown, Pennsylvania – AMT's alleged address in Bucks County, where Chiu and Li lived – is actually a "virtual office" location owned by Regus. AMT entered into an agreement with Regus in 2009 for "mail only" services, meaning that Regus staff were to accept mail delivered for certain entities and individuals as identified by Chiu, and forward it to him at whatever address he instructed them to use. This agreement was supposed to be in effect between 2009 and May 31, 2019. However, the Grand Jury learned that Chiu stopped communicating with this location entirely in September 2018. He also stopped paying on his rental agreement and abandoned numerous pieces of mail there.

The investigation revealed that Chiu and Li communicated with the Newtown Regus location through an e-mail address identified as cc@amtinfo.com. Regus staff forwarded mail to "Chris Chiu, AccuMeasurement and Testing, Unit D, Tower 2, 38 San Ma Tau Street, Kwa Wan, Hong Kong." Regus staff were instructed to accept mail pursuant to an agreement with Accu Measurement and Testing, Inc., for the following additional individuals and entities: AMT, Inc., Christopher [Wing Tat] Chiu, Ivy [Hui Yin] Li, Kenneth Chiu, Samson (or Sumson) Li, Wing Shun Chiu, Global Technic Enterprises, Ltd ("GTE"), Algorithm, Dataworks Analytics, and Airolution. The investigation established that Newtown Regus was a key address in Chiu and Li's multiyear fraud as many of their illegal activities were routed to and from this location.

The Grand Jury reviewed many e-mails evidencing the tangled web. Jenny Kan, for example, an employee of Regus in Tsim Sha Tsui Kowloon, Hong Kong sent this e-mail in 2015 to various Regus employees in Pennsylvania:

Mr. Chris Chiu's requirement regarding to [sic] mailbox plus service in United States. Chris would like to subscribe for 6-7 mailbox plus with (sic) effective on December 15 from the below centers. Berwyn- Westlakes. Philadelphia - Market

Streets and One Liberty Place, Newtown - Penns Trail, Pittsburgh - Grant Streets, Exton - Eagleview Corporate Center. As Chris raised out [sic] his mother company Accu Measurement and Testing, Inc., has subscribed for numbers [sic] of mailbox plus service in United States without retainer for account setup. Kindly seek your approve [sic] we could arrange to proceed service for related accounts without retainer, many thanks.

Kan also e-mailed Regus locations in Pennsylvania (with a cc: to hr@gtehome.com, an address for one of the Chiu/Li companies) to place an order for rental of mailboxes at the following locations for the following companies:

Individual & Company Name	Regus Location
Bred Patterson (American Computing)	Philadelphia, One Liberty Place
Bruce Nelson (AHFT)	Pittsburgh
J. Anderson (Dataworks Analytics, Inc)	Exton
Eric Moore (AMQ)	Philadelphia- Market St.
Tony Edwards (Algorithm Expert, Inc)	Newtown- Penns Trail
Mike Sander (Orange Innovation)	Berwyn- Westlakes

The Grand Jury also reviewed a January 2016 e-mail from Kan, advising "Ally" at amtinc@gmail.com (one of Li's e-mail addresses) that mail for five of these companies would be forwarded to the Regus location in Hong Kong. She mentioned that many of the Pennsylvania centers were waiting for a required form providing identification. The Grand Jury learned that in order to rent a mailbox at one of the Regus locations, proof of identification was required. The evidence revealed, however, that most of the companies in question failed to supply the necessary form.

Chiu and Li did not limit their mail forwarding to addresses in Pennsylvania. Evidence established that they also used mail drops including a UPS store at 4023 Kennett Pike #50031 in Wilmington, Delaware, an Earth Class location at 427 North Tatnall Street in Wilmington, and even an address at King's Capital 1 Banga Tower A16/F, 6.5 T. Bangkaew Bangplee, Samutprakarn, Thailand, 10540.

End results

Based on the evidence and testimony presented to the Grand Jury, it is clear that none of the twenty companies did any business entitling them to the Pennsylvania R&D and KIZ credits they obtained between 2012 and 2017. Nonetheless, they received a total of 89 such credits, and managed to sell 64 of them before the scheme was discovered. The chart below sets forth the details.
